Ports and Marine Technology Trade Mission to India

Hear first-hand from U.S Embassy India experts and special guest presenters about the latest port expansion and upgrade trends and market opportunities for U.S. companies focused on the fast growing southern regions of Mumbai, Ahmedabad, and Kochi.

Why India?

- India's extensive coast is home to more than 200 ports requiring expansion and upgrade, with some already in process. Greenfield port projects are also underway.
- Sales opportunities are coming from government tenders as well as private ports and terminal operators with upgrades and new projects.
- Southern ports featured on this trade mission represent much of the growth and new business potential
- India's port expansion to accommodate projected three-fold increases in cargo by 2020 opens tremendous opportunities for U.S. equipment and service companies.
- The U.S. Department of Commerce Executive-Led Port and Marine Technology Trade Mission to India February 2-6, 2015 will be outlined during this webinar.

Opportunities:

- Port plans are underway to develop new terminals, upgrade existing berths, and modernize operations to accommodate the growing port and shipping traffic -- with best sales prospects including: security, logistics, vessel tracking, oil spill detection and contingency preparedness, dredging, underwater exploration and mapping, among other goods and services.
- India's National Institute of Oceanography seeks advanced technologies to support their efforts in oceans exploration, coastline protection, and oil spill recovery.
